Autobiography :

Dr. Leong Fai holds a Doctorate in Clinical Medicine and Anesthesiology, and is currently based in Macao, Special Administrative Region of People's Republic of China. He is serving as Chief of Anesthesiology Department at Centro Hospitalar Conde de São Januário, Health Bureau, and as President of the Macao Society of Anesthesiology. In addition, his executive roles as Fellow of the Macao Academy of Medicine and Chairman of its Division of Anesthesiology establish his status as a strong leading academic figure in the field.

Dr. Leong's advocacy has granted him multiple significant directing roles as the Member of the Anesthesia Committee of the National Expert Committee on Cardiovascular Diseases in China, and Council Member of the World Association of Chinese Physicians.

Dr. Leong has always played a pivotal role in advancing anesthesia education and practices. By virtue of Dr. Leong's extensive clinical expertise in anesthesiology, cardiovascular anesthesia and perioperative medicine, he has been engaging in the management of anesthesiology department and operating room in the long term, specializing in neurosurgery and geriatric anesthesia. Furthermore, combined with his rich leadership experience in international academic organizations, Dr. Leong is well-positioned to contribute to the WSIVA Board.

Last but not least, Dr Leong's background as a Macao citizen allows him to embrace a rich multicultural heritage which values and respects diversity. He is particularly committed and passionate to advancing and advocating for the education and safe practice in anesthesiology, especially through a remarkably influential and global platform like WSIVA, where high-level academic discussions, networking and innovations meet, achieving collaborative solutions to global health challenges, along with a team of many other great minds.
